This book is produced using paper that is made from wood grown in managed, sustainable forests. It is natural, renewable and recyclable. The logging and manufacturing processes conform to the environmental regulations of the country of origin.

Introduction

If you want to practise and develop your knowledge of phrasal verbs and idioms, you will find this book very useful. The various exercises contain many of the most common phrasal verbs and idioms, together with some useful spoken expressions that you might expect to hear or use in an English-speaking environment.

You should not go through this book mechanically from beginning to end. It is better to choose one particular verb or topic, do the exercise(s), make a record of any new words and expressions that you learn, then practise using these in sentences or situations of your own. When you feel you have a good command of these, move to another verb or topic and do the same. You should also review the things you have learned on a regular basis, so that they remain 'fresh' in your mind and become part of your 'active' vocabulary.

The meanings of most of the phrasal verbs and idioms are explained in the book, either in the exercises themselves, or in the answer key at the back. This key also provides you with lots of similar or alternative expressions, together with examples of how they are used. However, we recommend that you keep a good dictionary with you, and refer to it when necessary. In particular, we recommend the A & C Black Easier English Intermediate Dictionary (ISBN 0-7475-6989-4) or the Macmillan English Dictionary (ISBN 0-333-96482-9), from which many of the definitions and sample sentences in this book have been taken.

No vocabulary book can possibly contain all of the thousands of English phrasal verbs and idioms that you are likely to come across or need, so it is important to acquire new ones from other sources. If you have access to English-language newspapers, popular magazines, television and radio programmes, films and albums of popular music, you will find that these are excellent resources.

We hope that you enjoy doing the exercises in this book. Before you begin, we suggest that you read this important information about phrasal verbs and idioms.

What is a phrasal verb?

A phrasal verb is a verb formed from two (or sometimes three) parts: a verb and an adverb or preposition. These adverbs and prepositions are often called particles when they are used in a phrasal verb.

Most phrasal verbs are formed from a small number of verbs (for example, get, go, come, put and set) and a small number of particles (for example, away, out, off, up and in).

Phrasal verbs sometimes have meanings that you can easily guess (for example, sit down or look for). However, in most cases their meanings are quite different from the meanings of the verb they are formed from. For example, hold up can mean 'to cause a delay' or 'to try to rob someone'. The original meaning of hold (for example, to hold something in your hands) no longer applies.

There are five main types of phrasal verb. These are:

1. Intransitive phrasal verbs (= phrasal verbs which do not need an object).
For example: You're driving too fast. You ought to slow down.
2. Transitive phrasal verbs (= phrasal verbs which must have an object) where the object can come in one of two positions:
 - (1) Between the verb and the particle(s).
For example: I think I'll put my jacket on.
or
 - (2) After the particle.
For example: I think I'll put on my jacket.

However, if the object is a pronoun (he, she, it, etc), it must usually come between the verb and the particle.

For example: I think I'll put it on. (NOT I think I'll put on it.)

3. Transitive phrasal verbs where the object must come between the verb and the particle.

For example: Our latest designs set our company apart from our rivals.

4. Transitive phrasal verbs where the object must come after the particle.

For example: John takes after his mother.

Why do you put up with the way he treats you?

5. Transitive phrasal verbs with two objects, one after the verb and one after the particle.

For example: They put their success down to good planning.

Some transitive phrasal verbs can be used in the passive, but the object cannot come between the verb and the particle.

For example:

Active: The soldiers blew up the bridge / The soldiers blew the bridge up.

Passive: The bridge was blown up by the soldiers.

Active: Switch the lights off before you leave / Switch off the lights before you leave.*

Passive: The lights must be switched off before you leave.

Active: It's time they did away with these silly rules.

Passive: It's time these silly rules were done away with. (where the subject is either not known or not needed).

A dictionary such as the Bloomsbury Easier English Intermediate Dictionary or the Macmillan English Dictionary will clearly show you the way you should use each phrasal verb.

What is an idiom?

An idiom is an expression where the meaning is different from the meaning of the individual words.

For example, to have your feet on the ground is an idiom meaning 'to be sensible': "Tara is an intelligent girl who has both her feet firmly on the ground."

A lot of idioms are formed using phrasal verbs.

For example: *After he left me, it took me a long time to pick up the pieces (= It took me a long time to return to a normal life).

Many idioms are colloquial, which means that they are used in informal conversation rather than in writing or formal language.

For example: "I won't tell anyone your secret. My lips are sealed."

In this book, you will find a lot of colloquial idioms, together with some examples of slang (very informal words and expressions that are often used by particular groups of people, such as teenagers). If an idiom that is being practised is informal or very informal, the book will tell you this.

Idiomatic emphasis

A lot of adjectives can be made 'stronger' by the addition of another word or words. In most cases, these words are used as a substitute for very or extremely (sometimes because very and extremely do not collocate (= work) with the adjectives that are being used).

For example: I'm awake = I'm wide awake / I'm warm = I'm as warm as toast

Complete the sentences with a word that emphasises the adjective / adjective phrase in bold, and write your answers in the crossword grid on the next page. Some of the letters are already in the grid. Note that in some sentences more than one answer may be possible, but only one will fit in the crossword grid.

Mixed phrasal verbs

This section looks at some common phrasal verbs that are not included in the main exercises elsewhere in this book.

Complete the second sentence of each pair with a phrasal verb so that the meaning of the sentence is the same as, or very similar to, the first sentence. The phrasal verbs should replace the words and expressions in bold. Choose your verb from the first box, and your particle from the second box. Some of the verbs, and most of the particles, must be used more than once. In some cases you will need to change the form of the verb. Also remember that some phrasal verbs need more than one particle.

Verbs break bring call carry catch count die drop end face find fall fill hand hold keep leave let point pull put show wear

Particles behind down in of off on out through to up with

When the tickets didn't arrive, I tried calling their telephone helpline, but was continually put _____ _____ a recorded announcement. After several attempts to phone them, I put pen _____ paper and wrote them a letter (I'm always much better at putting myself _____ in writing than I am at speaking). I was naturally put _____ when I didn't get a reply, so I visited the agency in their London offices. The manager saw me personally and I put my situation _____ him, explaining that I either wanted my tickets or my money back. He tried to put me _____ by saying that there was no record of my booking, but I put him _____ by showing him the transaction record on my credit card account. I then put my foot _____ and insisted he return my money. To my shock he called me a liar and told a security guard to remove me from the building. That was when I lost my temper. I went to my car, started the engine, put the car _____ gear, put my foot _____, and smashed the car through the agency's window.

And that, your honour, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, is my story. I hope you will take into account my feelings and emotions at the time. I just want to put it all _____ me. Please don't put me _____!

Idiomatic and colloquial responses

These exercises contain a lot of spoken expressions (some of them are formal, but most of them are informal) that we use in response to things that people say. For example, if somebody says "How did you know that I've been offered that job in London?", you might reply "A little bird told me." (which means that you are not going to say who told you).

Exercise 1: Match the sentences 1 – 25 with the most suitable response from the box at the bottom of the page. Use each response once only.

1. Goodbye. See you next week.
2. I forgot my wife's birthday.
3. My wife and I are celebrating our 25th wedding anniversary tonight.
4. Who was that man I saw you with last night?
5. I waited for the bus for half an hour, then three came along at once.
6. I've just eaten six hot dogs and now I've got a terrible stomach ache.
7. If you look at my girlfriend again, I'll kill you!
8. Thanks for inviting me to dinner.
9. I'm brilliant! My teacher says I'm the best student in her class.
10. Have a nice weekend.
11. What shall we have for dinner?
12. Please don't tell anyone my secret.
13. I'm tired. I'm going to bed.
14. I'm going to spend the weekend sitting in front of the television.
15. These chocolates look delicious.
16. Have you had enough to eat?
17. I can't come to your party.
18. I've just won £10,000!
19. I've got some amazing news.
20. By the time I'm 30, I'll be a millionaire and married to a supermodel.
21. I've heard that you're going to give me a surprise party for my birthday.
22. Acchhhooooooooo!
23. Men are much more intelligent than women.
24. Come on, let's go or we'll be late.
25. What are you going to get me for my birthday?

Note that this expression always uses the, not a). A person who gets on well with lots of people in different situations (social, work, etc) is a good mixer. A person who loves going to parties and having fun is a party animal. 11. wallflower (= someone at a social event who has no one to dance with or talk to, often because they are shy). Shrinking violet has a similar meaning. 12. crank (= someone who has very strange ideas or behaviour). We can also say an oddball or (very informally), a weirdo. 13. wimp (= someone who is not strong, brave or confident). If you decide not to do something because you are frightened or not confident, we say that you wimp out: "I was going to ask the boss for a pay rise, but then I wimped out". We can also say a softie. 14. golden boy (= a successful man that a lot of people like and admire. This expression is often used by journalists). Blue-eyed boy is a similar expression, but is often used in a disapproving way: "You know that Alastair McKinnon? He's such a blue-eyed boy! He'll be running the company before you know it!" 15. bunny boiler (= a woman who reacts badly, and sometimes violently, if a man ends a relationship with her or treats her badly in other ways). A bunny is an informal word for a rabbit, and the expression bunny boiler comes from a film in which a rejected woman gets her revenge on her ex-boyfriend by killing and boiling his child's pet rabbit. There is no male equivalent of this expression. Note that troublemaker could also be used to complete this sentence. 16. slave driver (= someone who makes people work very hard). 17. early bird (= someone who gets up early, starts work early, etc). This expression comes from the English saying "The early bird catches the worm". 18. tearaway (= a young person who does dangerous, silly or illegal things that often get them into trouble). A person or animal who is difficult to deal with or control could be called a terror: "Annie was so sweet when she was a baby, but now she's a little terror." 19. Don Juan (= a man who is very successful with women). We can also say a Casanova or a Romeo (all three are named after famous lovers from stories). Note that these words are often preceded by a regular. A woman who is attractive to men but who treats them badly could be called a femme fatale.

Answer key

20. busybody (= someone who is very interested in other people's private lives and activities, and tries to get involved in them in a way that is annoying). Someone who is very interested in other people's private lives but doesn't normally get involved could be called a nosey parker. If one of your neighbours is a nose parker, you could describe him / her as a curtain twitcher (he / she watches the neighbours from behind the curtains in his / her house).

21. Scrooge (= someone who likes to keep all their money and doesn't like to spend it: from a character in a novel by Charles Dickens). If you pay someone peanuts, you pay them very little money. We could describe a miser as tight or tight-fisted: "Don't be so tight-fisted dad! I only want to borrow £10." A person who likes to make money is sometimes described as a moneygrabber or a moneygrubber.

22. daydreamer (= someone who is always thinking about something pleasant when they should be doing something more important). A daydreamer could be said to have their head in the clouds.

23. skiver (= a person who isn't at school or work when they should be). A skiver often pretends to be ill, and is said to be skiving off or throwing a sickie.

24. scrounger (= someone who gets something they want by asking someone for it instead of getting or paying for it themselves. It comes from the verb to scrounge). A lazy, greedy person who does this could be called a parasite (this word has a much more negative connotation). Scrooge (see number 21) would also work in this sentence.

25. rolling stone (= someone who does not stay in the same job or with the same friends for long). This comes from the English saying "A rolling stone gathers no moss".

26. clock-watcher (= someone who doesn't concentrate on their work because they wish it was time to stop).

27. salt of the earth (= an ordinary person who is respected because they are honest and good. Note that this expression always uses the and not a). A good or reliable person could also be described as a good egg.

28. troublemaker (= someone who causes problems, often by being violent or by making others argue). We can also say a stirrer (someone who likes to stir up trouble).

29. smart Alec (also written alec or Aleck) (= someone who behaves in an annoying way by trying to show how clever they are). We can also say a clever dick.

30. stuffed shirt (= a boring person, usually male, who always behaves in a very correct way). We can also say a stick in the mud.

31. creep (= an unpleasant person, especially someone who tries to please or impress people in positions of authority). A child at school who is popular with the teachers for doing this might be called a teacher's pet by his / her jealous schoolmates: "I can't stand Linda Harley: she's such a teacher's pet."

32. bigmouth (= someone who talks a lot and is unable to keep anything secret). We can also say a blabbermouth.

33. rough diamond (= someone who does not behave politely or is not well-educated, but is pleasant and kind)

34. wolf in sheep's clothing (= someone who seems friendly but is in fact unpleasant or cruel). The opposite is a teddy bear (= someone, always a man, who looks tough and unfriendly, but is in fact very friendly and pleasant)

35. chinless wonder (= a rich but weak or stupid man). This expression is often used to describe members of the British upper classes.

Exercise 2: Here are the complete conversations. An explanation of each expression can be found below the complete conversations.

Julie: You two-timing, double-crossing cheat!
 Rick: Come again?
 Julie: You heard me. I saw you leaving a restaurant with a strange woman today.
 Rick: Come off it / I don't know where you're coming from! What woman?
 Julie: Don't come the innocent with me!
 Rick: Look, I'm sorry, but I don't know where you're coming from.
 Julie: The long-haired brunette in the jeans and leather jacket.
 Rick: Ah, right. How come you saw us?
 Julie: I had gone into town to do some shopping and saw the two of you. Who is she? And don't lie, or you'll get what's coming, believe me.
 Rick: Well, I suppose I'll have to come clean, won't I?
 Julie: You certainly will.
 Rick: You saw us from behind, right?
 Julie: Uh, right.
 Rick: Yes, well, when it comes to making false assumptions, you win. That was Alan, my new boss.

Tim: I haven't seen John today. Come to think about it, I haven't seen him for a few weeks.

Andy: Oh, he's busy moving into his new house. He's bought a place in Hampstead.

Tim: In Hampstead? How did he afford that? Houses in Hampstead don't come cheap.

Andy: Well, he's come a long way / come up in the world since he worked as a salesman for PTG. He owns his own company now, and is making a fortune.

Apparently he's now as rich as they come.

Tim: He kept that quiet. I didn't know how much he had come up in the world.

Andy: Well, he doesn't like to boast about it. How are you getting on in your new job, by the way?

Tim: Oh, there's so much to do and so much to learn that most of the time I don't know if I'm coming or going. I'm just taking each day as it comes. How's work for you?

Andy: Oh, so so, you know. I was hoping to look for something else more interesting, but there aren't many jobs out there. I guess I'll be with the same company for years to come. What I need is a big win on the lottery.

Tim: Yes, that would come in handy! In the meantime, how about buying me another drink?

Andy: Same again?

Tim: Yes please.

Andy: OK, coming right up!

If someone is in serious trouble with someone else, we can describe them (very informally) as dead meat: If you borrow my car again without asking, you're dead meat! 7. potato. A couch potato is someone who spends a lot of time watching television and not getting any exercise. 10. beans. When you spill the beans, you confess or admit to something wrong that you have done (usually when under pressure from someone, such as the police). 11. grapes. Sour grapes is criticism of something that you make because you cannot have it. 12. peanuts. If someone pays you peanuts for doing a job, they pay you very little money. 13. water. Someone who spends money like water spends a lot of money very quickly. 16. butter. Someone who has butter fingers or who is a butter fingers is often dropping things. Butter can be used in other expressions. For example, "Billy Brannigan looks like butter wouldn't melt in his mouth, but in fact he's the best salesman in the company" (= Billy Brannigan looks a bit weak, but he is in fact a very efficient, confident person). 18. sugar. A sugar daddy is a humorous expression for an older man who gives a younger woman expensive presents, especially in exchange for a romantic or sexual relationship. There is no female equivalent of this word, but a young man who goes out with an older woman is sometimes humorously called a toy boy. 19. cream. Someone who looks like the cat who got the cream looks very happy. 21. beetroot. If you go as red as a beetroot (or just go beetroot), your face becomes very red, usually because you are embarrassed. A beetroot is the root of a vegetable that is cooked and eaten cold in salads, but is in fact more purple in colour than red. 24. bacon. The person or people in a family who bring home the bacon earn the money which supports the family. We sometimes call the work that you do for money your bread and butter: "Teaching English is my bread and butter". The person who makes money for their family is called the breadwinner. 25. apple. A bad or rotten apple is someone in a group who does bad things and therefore has a negative effect on the whole group. 26. jelly. If your body, or part of your body, turns to jelly or feels like jelly, you start to shake and feel weak because you are nervous or frightened. Jelly is a sweet food that shakes when you touch or move it (called Jell-O in the USA).

Down:

1. cheese. The big cheese is a humorous expression for the most important person in a company or organisation. In the USA, people sometimes use the expression head honcho. Cheese can be used in other expressions, including chalk and cheese: Although Rick and Chris are brothers, they're chalk and cheese (= Rick and Chris are very different from each other). 2. biscuit. If something takes the biscuit, it is the most silly, stupid or annoying thing in a series of things. 4. peach. A peach of something is very good. This is a slightly old-fashioned expression. Peach is also sometimes used to describe an attractive woman (Debbie McKenzie is lovely. She's a real peach!), but this might be considered sexist by some people. 6. mustard. Someone who is as keen as mustard is very keen / enthusiastic. Mustard can also be used in the expression cut the mustard: I'm afraid we can't offer you the job. You're very keen, but you just don't cut the mustard (= you are not good enough for this job). 8. toast. A person or a place that is as warm as toast is comfortably warm. 9. raspberry. When you blow a raspberry at someone you make a rude noise with your mouth and tongue (in the USA, this is known as a Bronx cheer). 10. bananas. This is a humorous word for someone who behaves in a mad or crazy way. We can also say nuts or *crackers. 14. salt. If someone is the salt of the earth, they are a good, honest person who people respect. More informally, we could call that person a good egg. 15. lemon. A person who is or looks a lemon or appears to be stupid or not effective. This word can also be used to describe something that you buy that does not work properly: I spent £14000 on this car, and it's a complete lemon! 17. tea. If something is your cup of tea, you like or enjoy it. This expression is usually used in the negative. 19. cucumber. A person who is as cool as a cucumber is very relaxed and does not show extreme emotions such as fear or panic. 20. egg. If you have or are left with egg on your face, you are embarrassed because of something you have done. This expression is often used when talking informally about politics and politicians. 21. beef. If you beef about something, you complain a lot about it. 22. cookie (a cookie is the North American word for a biscuit). A smart cookie (sometimes called a tough cookie) is someone who has a strong character or is intelligent, and deals well with problems and disappointments. 23. candy (candy is the North American word for chocolate). If we describe something as eye candy, it is nice to look at, but not very useful.

* There are a lot of English idioms and other words and expressions that can be used (often humorously, but not politely) to describe someone who is mad or insane, or who behaves in a mad way. Here are a few:

barmy; off his / her rocker; out of his / her tree; dotty; potty; batty; out to lunch; round the bend; potty; bonkers; stark staring bonkers; stark raving mad; a nutcase; a nutter; a basket case; a fruitcake; as nutty as a fruitcake; as mad as a hatter; as mad as a March hare; as mad as a box of frogs; a loony; a crackpot; two sandwiches short of a picnic; a few cards short of a full deck; a few bricks short of a full load; he's / she's lost his / her marbles; he's / she's got toys in the attic; gaga; doolally (these last four are often used to describe old people who are going senile)

Be very careful how and when you use these words and expressions: they are not politically correct (= they are not considered acceptable in many situations, and some people might be offended by them).

Phrasal verbs, idioms and other expressions using 'put' (page 47)

Here is the completed text. Use your dictionary to check the meanings of any expressions that you don't understand.

The company I had been working for was taken over by a new manager, and we didn't get on very well. Every suggestion that I put forward he rejected, he put me under a lot of pressure to work longer hours, and he continually put me down in front of the other employees. The final straw came when he told me to put together an exhibition for a trade fair: I put in weeks of work, but he told me that he thought the final result was "rubbish". He even put the word out that I was lazy and unreliable. I made a great effort to put aside our differences, but eventually decided the best thing would be to put in for a transfer to another department. When this was refused, I decided I couldn't put up with it any more, and resigned.

Fortunately I had managed to put aside a bit of money (including some that I had put into a high-interest deposit account), and so I decided to take a well-deserved holiday. There were several interesting holiday offers in the newspapers, but I decided to put off choosing one until I found exactly what I wanted. It was a friend who put me onto a travel agency that specialised in walking holidays in interesting parts of the world. I checked their website, found a holiday that I wanted and put down a £200 deposit, followed by the balance three weeks later. When the tickets didn't arrive, I tried calling their telephone helpline, but was continually put through to a recorded announcement. After several attempts to phone them, I put pen to paper and wrote them a letter (I'm always much better at putting myself across in writing than I am at speaking). I was naturally put out when I didn't get a reply, so I visited the agency in their London offices. The manager saw me personally and I put my situation to him, explaining that I either wanted my tickets or my money back. He tried to put me off by saying that there was no record of my booking, but I put him straight by showing him the transaction record on my credit card account. I then put my foot down and insisted he return my money. To my shock he called me a liar and told a security guard to remove me from the building. That was when I lost my temper. I went to my car, started the engine, put the car into gear, put my foot down, and smashed the car through the agency's window.

And that, your honour, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, is my story. I hope you will take into account my feelings and emotions at the time. I just want to put it all behind me. Please don't put me away!

Idiomatic and colloquial responses (pages 48 – 49)

Exercise 1: (These are the most appropriate answers):

1. R (Cheerio is an informal way of saying goodbye. Do not confuse this with Cheers, which is something we say when we drink, or when we thank someone very informally) 2. N (Someone who is in the doghouse is in trouble for something they have or haven't done: "You'll be in the doghouse if you don't finish Mr Walton's report by lunchtime") 3. Y (Congratulations is used for special events such as anniversaries, engagements, marriages, the birth of a new baby, etc. Some people also use it for birthdays, but this is less common) 4. P (This impolite expression is something we say when we want people to stop asking personal questions. It is sometimes shortened to Mind your own) 5. Q (How typical!, sometimes shortened to just Typical! is a very common English expression that we use when something that happens frequently happens again: "Our flight has been delayed. Typical!") 6. U (We say That'll teach you when we do not feel sorry for the person who is complaining because it is their own fault. It is often followed by for + an -ing verb: "That'll teach you for eating so much" or not to + an infinitive verb: "That'll teach you not to eat so much". We can also say Serves you right.) 7. G (You and whose army? is a very informal and aggressive expression which means that you do not think the person who is speaking to you is capable of doing something, especially fighting. It is sometimes used humorously between good friends) 8. W (You're welcome is a polite response when someone thanks us. We can also say Not at all, My pleasure or, less formally, No problem or OK. Make yourself at home is an expression we use to make people feel comfortable when they visit our home) 9. I (Stop blowing your own trumpet is an informal, impolite expression which means the same as Don't boast! or Stop showing off!) 10. J (We can also say You too) 11. O (This is a very informal expression that we use when we want to say how much we want something to eat or drink: "I'm really thirsty: I could murder an ice-cold Coke") 12. X (We can also say Your secret's safe with me or I won't breathe a word) 13. E (a very informal way of saying you hope someone sleeps well) 14. A (This is a very informal way of telling someone that they should do something more interesting in their free time) 15. B (a very informal way of saying Don't touch!) 16. C (a very informal way of saying that you are full and can't eat any more) 17. V (an expression of disappointment) 18. Idioms that use words connected with the weather (page 62)

1. a frosty reception (= the people who listened to the speech disapproved of what they heard. Frosty can be used with other words to express disapproval. For example, a frosty look, a frosty stare, a frosty tone, etc) 2. my mind is in a fog (= the speaker cannot think clearly) 3. save something for a rainy day (= save some money for when you need it) 4. right as rain (= feeling well) 5. has a really sunny disposition (= very happy, cheerful, friendly, etc) 6. snowed under (= the speaker has so much work to do that he cannot do anything else) 7. a face like thunder (= the boss looks very angry) 8. run like the wind (= run very quickly) 9. cloud your judgement (= if something clouds your judgement, it makes you less able to make a good decision) 10. stole my thunder (= he took my ideas and used them as his own, then got all the credit) 11. got the red mist (= became extremely angry) 12. took the wind out of my sails (= the manager made the speaker feel much less enthusiastic or confident about something) 13. on cloud nine (= very happy because of something that has happened. We can also say in seventh heaven) 14. it never rains but it pours (= a spoken expression which means that problems often seem to happen all at the same time) 15. take a rain check (= turn down an offer and accept it at a later date) 16. as pure as the driven snow (= an expression we use when someone thinks that they are morally superior to other people, but we know that they are not) 17. Any port in a storm (= a spoken expression which means that you will accept any help or take any opportunity if you are in a bad situation) 18. see which way the wind blows (= if you wait to see which way the wind blows, you observe a situation carefully before making a decision) 19. come rain or shine (= a spoken expression which means that you will do something regardless of what else happens) 20. put the wind up (= if you put the wind up someone, you make them nervous or frightened) 21. a storm in a teacup (= a lot of trouble about something that is not important) 22. got wind of (= find out something secret or private) 23. a hail of criticism (= a lot of people criticised her suggestions) 24. rain on her parade (= do something to spoil someone's ideas, plans, etc)

There are also a lot of expressions that can be used to talk about the weather. If it is raining very heavily, we can say that it is raining cats and dogs (a rather old-fashioned expression), or it's chucking (it) down. We can describe a very hot day as a scorcher. If there is a very strong wind, we might say that it is blowing a gale. If there is a cold breeze (= light wind), we could say that there is a nasty nip in the air. When the weather is very cold, we could humorously say that it is brass monkey weather or it's cold enough to freeze the balls of a brass monkey (an old navy expression that has passed into everyday English: balls in this case are cannonballs). A thick fog could be described as a pea-souper, and the speaker might complain that he can't see his hand in front of his face. If it is cold, windy and rainy, we could describe it as a pig of a day.
